Pembrokeshire Coast National Park Abereiddi/Pwll-caerog

Short Walk

© Crown copyright and database rights 2012 Ordnance Survey 100022534.

Abereiddi/Pwll-caerog Short Walk

Duration: 1 hour

Length: 2.3 miles (3.7 km)

Public transport: *Strumble Shuttle 404 (*seasonal, hail & ride).

Grid ref: SM797311

A walk that takes you along a stretch of coast with a rich heritage.

Look out for: Caerau Iron Age Fort.

Much of the land on the route is scarred by slate quarrying in the nineteenth century. 'Sea quarries', formed when the sea floods old quarry workings, are a unique feature of the area. Perhaps the best example is the Blue Lagoon at Abereiddi to the north, which is worth a short detour to see. There's an Iron Age Fort at Caerau overlooking the sea.

The rugged rocks of Abereiddi Bay are made up of easily eroded Ordovician slates, rather than the surrounding harder igneous rock of St Davids Head and Strumble Head (Watch out for fossil tuning fork graptolites plankton like organisms that lived in colonies - in the rock).

M Rose from Barry has been on this walk. She says: "Abereiddi is one of my favourite Pembrokeshire spots. I've both walked and kayaked around there. It's a lovely stretch of coast - not too strenuous for walking, with lots of little coves where you can sometimes spot seal cubs in late summer. Highlights include the Blue Lagoon, which attracts young men who jump into the sea from terrifying heights, and the van usually found on the Abereiddy beach where you can get a cup of tea, and, if you're lucky, fresh mackerel." Character: Rugged coast, fields and livestock, reasonably level.

Text provided by the BBC

