

INFORMATION FOR CLIMBERS

The cliffs of Pembrokeshire are within the Pembrokeshire Coast National Park. They are of international importance for cliff-nesting birds and provide some of the best sea-cliff climbing in the country. This leaflet gives details of agreed seasonal climbing restrictions established to protect nesting and feeding sites. These are essential for the continued existence of the colonies of seabirds and for the chough, peregrines and ravens which nest here. The climbing areas are within Sites of Special Scientific Interest (SSSI) and European Special Protection Areas (SPA). Please refer to the 'Green Guide' to climbing which can be found on the British Mountaineering Council website.

They are reviewed annually as part of the liaison process between all the organisations involved. All climbers are asked to observe the restrictions.
